There are lot of products available to learn Artificial Intelligence. AI's and Deep learning is the only way to keep pace with human intelligence. Markets will start looking for automation solutions in areas where the number of transactions is huge such as procurement and billing. AI will also have a significant impact on the functions and features of every business, as we are already seeing with the explosion of voice-based assistance. Some of the benefits of AI include: Faster and more accurate results from complex transactions Gain insights to lead to actionable recommendations Reduce the cost of administration and employee performance Enterprises use AI-enabled platform to make the data integration and machine learning available As more companies are making use of AI, it is important to understand the different types of AI, the use cases and benefits of each. The three most popular areas of AI adoption include: NLP Reinforcement learning Deep learning Deep learning is the main focus of enterprise AI adoption as it is an AI technology to create intelligent machines that are able to learn and adapt to change It works using a specific kind of neural network. In that way, it can learn from experience and data by developing general rules from training exercises. Reinforcement learning is a specific type of deep learning. In this way, AI uses a model to perform a certain task and the model learns from the results of those tasks and applies the knowledge to the next. What Types of AI are There? There are 3 main types of AI: 1. Machine Learning 2. Rule-based learning 3. Neural network Machine Learning Machine learning is a set of techniques used to make machines able to learn and adapt to change. It uses statistical models to predict outcomes based on past data and build general rules from experience. An example is neural networks, it uses a model to make decisions based on experience and intelligence to create a conclusion Machine Learning can be used for the following: Knowledge extraction from a set of data Natural Language Processing (NLP) Natural Language Understanding (NLU) Machine Learning does not require a very large amount of data to be created as it can make conclusions based on experience and data. For example, machine learning can apply new rules to decisions based on customer service or customer recommendations. So, you need
